Revision of Middle East Basic Requirements

1. The Chairman emphasized the importance of:
 - a. The basic list being in good order since only then can the system for reporting in code be effective.
 - b. Levying only the essential requirements because of the cumulative impact at various points in the system, to wit: Operations' DPS/DCI planning, operations themselves, [] preliminary analysis, and [] reporting through already congested communications channels to a number of places.

2. The Chairman requested that each agency carefully review the basic list and transmit directly to HTAUTOMAT, attention [redacted] proposed revisions of the list with correct coordinates and with specification by any where appropriate of airfield, complex, port, etc.

3. In telephoning requirements to the Chairman's office, the agencies may specify targets for guidance of the PIs which will be listed in the target list for the day under that title, which may be ignored by Operations/DPS/DCI planning but which will be transmitted by HTAUTOMAT to [redacted]. Such coordinates taken from the basic list will be presumed to be covered by priority targets though not exactly coincident with the coordinates of such targets.

Tactical Targets Peripheral
to the Middle East Area

4. The Army and Navy will submit tactical targets in the Balkans, Transcaucasus, and the Turkman area as they desire. These will be issued by the office of the Chairman as basic tactical target lists against the eventuality that they may be needed for tactical reconnaissance by CHALICE. The Air Force at this time elects not to submit such targets but will rely upon the basic target list on satellites should an emergency arise.

Additions to the USSR and China Target Listings

5. The members were requested to inform the office of the Chairman their view with regard to the requests of the Navy, as set forth in Ser:NT-000169 dated 4 June 1958 (TCS-3296-58) and Ser:NT-000203 dated 25 June 1958 (TCS-3362-58) and Ser:NT-000204 dated 25 June 1958 (TCS-3365-58).

6. The ARC considered a proposal of the Air Force to place DNEPROPETROVSK automobile plant in the highest category USSR. (Reference: TH-1421-8 dated 8 July 1958.) Pending further evidence [redacted] it was agreed that DNEPROPETROVSK will remain on the high list, with the understanding that it would be given attention for coverage incident to planning for penetration in the area.
